Traditionally, Reentry Reflection has served as a time to focus on the challenges faced by those returning to the community after a period of incarceration. This year, we are shifting our focus to more broadly include those involved in the justice system who may not have served any time, but who still face many similar challenges.

Visit our website or follow us on social media (information below) to learn more about Reentry Reflection and the upcoming events during this year's observance.
